

Salvage

by moulham obid

A Journey of Diversity, Sustainability, and Inclusivity Visionary fashion designer Moulham Obid unveils his groundbreaking collection, "Salvage," which shatters the boundaries of fashion and builds a foundation for equality and unity.

His extravagant and innovative creations are a cry to society and to each individual. Through his garments crafted from upcycled materials, Obid appeals to the inherent dignity of every human being—regardless of origin, skin color, gender, religion, or social status. He emphasizes that diversity enriches our world, adding to its beauty and vibrancy.

The collection features vivid colors, bold contrasts, and original silhouettes. Yet, beneath the daring exterior lies not only a resolute stance on pertinent social issues but also a deep commitment to sustainability and ethics.

Obid's garments are made exclusively from secondhand fabrics and materials, which he repurposes to conserve our planet's resources.

"It only takes the right moment to create something new, something truly magnificent, out of something old."

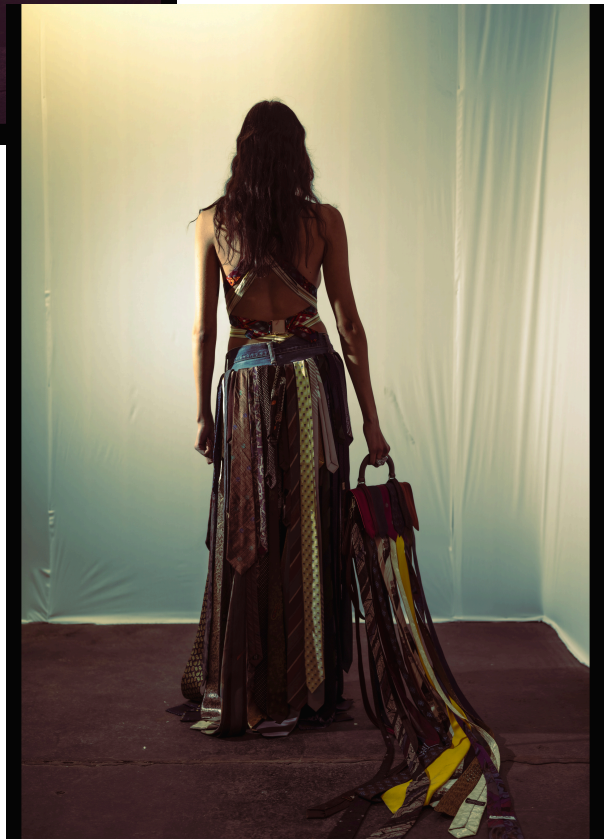

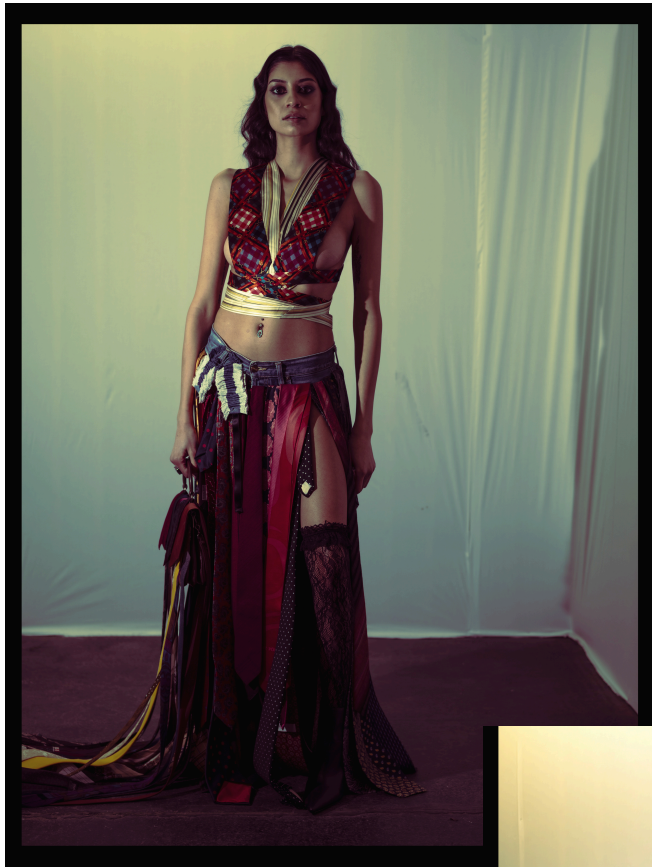

To grasp the young designer's artistic vision, more than a cursory glance is required. Obid urges us to see one another and approach each other with love and empathy. Details such as heart-embroidered cotton, striking angel wings, and intricate handiwork offer glimpses into the powerful emotions and thoughts that shape his creations.

"We need an expansion of our mental eye to recognize the diversity and beauty of every single element in the universe."

While much of his collection reveals itself, a sense of mystery and allure remains. But perhaps it is this indefinable magic that renders Obid's fashion so utterly extraordinary.
